'Made' Philly mobster pleads, won't testify at trial

A second member of Philadelphia mob family La Cosa Nostra has pleaded guilty to racketeering charges ahead of an October trial.

Martin Angelina, 50, was a reportedly a "made" member of the crime organization under Joseph Ligambi. He was one of 14 people, including Ligambi, charged by federal prosecutors with racketeering conspiracy, extortion, loan sharking, illegal gambling and other crimes.

Angelina entered the plea Wednesday at a plea hearing before U.S. District Judge Eduardo C. Robreno. He admitted to attempting to collect payments for loans and operating an illegal video poker machine business. Angelina is expected to be sentenced to 57 months, including time already served awaiting trial, said defense attorney Jack McMahon. McMahon said the plea was a non-cooperation plea, meaning he will not testify against his co-defendants.

"He wanted to get this behind him. He didn't want to take a risk of anything further," McMahon said after the hearing. "He thought this was the safest and quickest route."

Last week, Gaeton Lucibello pleaded guilty to similar charges and is scheduled to be sentenced in November. He also faces between 51 and 63 months and is not cooperating with prosecutors.

The guilty pleas come two months before the Oct. 9 trial for Ligambi, the reputed boss, underboss Joseph Massimino, George Borgesi, Anthony Staino Jr., Damion Canalicchio, Louis Barretta, Gary Battagliani, Joseph Licata, and Louis Fazzini. The trial for Robert Verrecchia, Eric Esposito, and Robert Ranieri has not yet been scheduled. Angelina, who reportedly has close ties with Joey Merlino, previously served time for a 2001 racketeering conviction.

Philly tickled by odd game called Pickleball

► Hybrid that combines aspects of tennis and volleyball catching on across region ► Just don't expect to see the game played in Olympics anytime soon

► The game involves a paddle and a ball similar to a wiffleball.

► The game has spread to Pleasant Park in Mount Airy.

The Summer Olympics have shined a light on a number of strange competitive sports — racewalking, anyone? But right here in Philly, another weird game is quickly catching on: Pickleball.

"I first heard when I was in Arizona visiting friends that moved down there," said former LaSalle University head tennis coach Stan Shoemaker. "So I go out there and I see this court — it looks like a mini tennis court — and I immediately fell in love with this game."

Described as a hybrid incorporating aspects of tennis, volleyball, table tennis and badminton, the sport was started in the 1970s, but didn't catch on locally until Shoemaker returned from his trip in the winter of 2008 and started a group on Meetup.com. Soon 20 members ballooned to nearly 200.

Rules of the game

- Pickleball is played on a badminton or tennis court with the net lowered and a smaller area marked off. Players use lightweight paddles and a perforated plastic ball, similar to a wiffle ball.
- Games can be played in singles or doubles and usually end at 11 points. A point can only be scored by the server or serving team.
- The server hits the ball underhand from below the waist. The ball must bounce once before the receiver can return it and bounce again before the server can hit it back. After that, the ball can be hit either in the air or after it bounces.

- The game is more accessible than tennis or badminton because the short racquets require less hand-eye coordination, the underhand style is easier on the joints, the smaller court means less running and the perforated ball travels slower.

"It's the most growing sport around," Shoemaker said. "I've had everyone come out from people in their 20s up to 85. I've got two grown kids, five grandchildren and even the little one, who is 4 years old, she's starting to play a little Pickleball herself. It's a game for a lifetime and I just keep getting more and more calls about it all time."

Masons Mill Park in Huntingdon Valley, which hosts bi-weekly matches, has even painted official Pickleball courts, Shoemaker said. He attributes the game's rapid spread to its social nature.

Dan Wheeler, who won the gold medal in his age division at last year's USA Pickleball Association National Tournament in Arizona, started another bi-weekly group at Mount Airy's Pleasant Park in April.

"Most people are coming to Pleasant, especially the better players," he said. "We mix the better and the weaker players sometimes."

But he doesn't expect to see Pickleball in the Olympics any time soon.

"I don't see that happening," he said. "It's not a knock against the game. While Pickleball is played in some other countries, it's pretty much a U.S. sport."

How Pickleball evolved

► 1965 — Pickleball was invented by Washington State Joel Pritchard and Bill Bell at Pritchard's home on Bainbridge Island in Washington state by creating four wooden paddles and using a perforated plastic ball to play on the property's old badminton court. It was named for the the Pritchard family cocker spaniel, Pickles.

► 1967 — Pritchard had the first permanent Pickleball court constructed in his Seattle backyard.

► 1972 — A corporation was first formed to protect the sport.

► 1976 — The world's first known pickleball tournament was held at the South Center Athletic Club in Tukwila, Washington.

► 1984 — The USA Pickleball Association was formed to promote the sport's growth and advancement on a national level.

► 2005 — USAPA became a nonprofit.

► 2008 — The Rules Committee published the USA Pickleball Association Official Tournament Rulebook.

► 2009 — The first USAPA National Tournament was held in Buckeye, Ariz., and drew nearly 400 players of all ages from 26 states and several Canadian provinces.

Rizzo Jr. 'saddened' by charge against sister

► The daughter of former Mayor Frank Rizzo, above, was allegedly involved in a sports betting ring.

Sixteen people, including the daughter of the late Mayor Frank Rizzo, have been charged as part of a multimillion-dollar sports betting ring based in Montgomery County.

Federal prosecutors unsealed an indictment yesterday alleging that brothers Joseph Vito Mastronardo and John Mastronardo led an organization that, at its height, had 1,000 bettors throughout the country and generated millions of dollars a year.

Montgomery County authorities investigated the operation two years ago, but turned it over to federal investigators, who expanded the probe.

According to the indictment, between January 2005 and January 2011, the organization used Internet websites and telephone numbers that allowed bettors to place bets on football, baseball, basketball, golf, horse racing and other sporting events. The websites and phone numbers were staffed by employees in Costa Rica.

The indictment alleges that Joanna Mastronardo, the wife of Joseph Vito Mastronardo and daughter of former Mayor Frank Rizzo, made roughly 72 deposits in amounts less than $10,000, totaling more than $500,000 in a year. She is charged with structuring. Also charged in the conspiracy is her son, Joseph F. Mastronardo.

Former City Councilman

Frank Rizzo Jr. declined to comment on his sister's arrest because he was unfamiliar with the charges, but said he was saddened by the news.

"It's obviously a family issue and at this point it's just better that I don't comment on it," he said when reached by phone.

Members of the organization allegedly communicated by telephone, e-mail, text message, Skype and in person to maintain the operation, the indictment alleges.

Other defendants facing charges are Eric Woehlcke, Harry Murray, Joseph Vitelli, Anna Rose Vitelli, Patrick Tronoski, Edward Feighan, Kenneth Cohen, Schuyler Twaddle, Michael Loftus, Michael Squillante, David Rounick, Ronald Gendrach. Each was released on bail and awaits a preliminary hearing.

Temple's new chief: He'll be 'responsive' to students, residents

The Board of Trustees of Temple University met Tuesday and voted unanimously to approve Neil Theobald as the 10th president of Temple University, effective Jan. 1, 2013.

The vote came at a public meeting of the board that topped off Theobald's two-day visit to the main campus, during which he met staff, students and faculty in a series of open meet-and-greets.

Theobald's experience as CFO and senior vice president at Indiana University — his current position — will benefit Temple, which faces significant challenges in this era of state budget cuts. In Indiana, he supervises a budget of $3.1 billion (Temple's projected budget for fiscal year 2013 is $1.153 billion) at a university with 110,000 students (Temple has 39,000).

The school's budget was cut by $38.4 million (7.8 percent), but Theobald not only avoided layoffs, but provided small increases in faculty and staff salaries.

Affordability his priority

"My main priority will be to continue to provide an affordable college education for students in the city, the region, and beyond." Theobald — who, like his wife, Sheona, was the first in his family to attend college — understands the important role of public universities. He is excited about being part of the Big East, not just for Temple's sports teams, but as a marketing opportunity. "This is a way to reach prospective students in New York, Chicago, Louisville."

● METRO/JW

He emphasized his desire to not just meet but talk with everyone affected by Temple, from students to people in the surrounding neighborhoods.

"We need to be responsive to their needs and to let them know what we're planning."

Theobald was the sole finalist of a search process that involved hundreds of applicants and dozens of interviews, according to board president Patrick O'Connor, who also chaired the search committee.

"This is absolutely a dream job," he said.

Hart leaves, then takes over Ariz. U.

Temple's previous president, Ann Weaver Hart, unexpectedly announced her resignation in September 2011, effective June 30 of this year. Hart, who held the position for six years, said at the time that she wanted to be more available to her aging parents in Utah.

She subsequently accepted the presidency at the University of Arizona.

Richard Englert will serve as interim president until Theobald takes office on Jan.

Obama's lead grows despite voter pessimism

WASHINGTON. Americans are increasingly pessimistic about the future, but voters do not seem to be holding it against Democratic President Barack Obama, who slightly expanded his lead over Republican rival Mitt Romney this month, a new Reuters/Ipsos poll says.

Three months before the Nov. 6 presidential election, nearly two-thirds of Americans think the country is moving in the wrong direction. Only 31 percent say it is moving in the right direction — the lowest number since December 2011.

MILWAUKEE. The white supremacist gunman who killed six people at a Sikh temple in Wisconsin died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head, the FBI said yesterday.

A police officer shot and wounded the gunman, Wade Page, 40, in the stomach outside the temple in Oak Creek on Sunday, said Teresa Carlson, an FBI special agent in "Subsequent to that wound, it appears that Page died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head," she said at a news conference.

Police had said Page had been shot to death by an officer responding to the attack at the Sikh Temple of Wisconsin in suburban Milwaukee.

July was hottest month ever for continental US

► The drought triggered a surge in the prices for U.S. corn and soybeans to record highs last month, with values rising about 50 percent and 30 percent, respectively, over the past two months.

July was the hottest month in the continental United States on record, beating the hottest month in the devastating Dust Bowl summer of 1936, the government reported yesterday.

It was also the warmest January-to-July period since modern record-keeping began in 1895, and the warmest 12-month period, eclipsing the last record set just a month ago, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said.

This is the fourth time in as many months that temperatures broke the hottest 12-month record.

The average temperature for July across the contiguous 48 states was 77.6 degrees F, or 3.3 degrees F above the 20th century average. The previous warmest July, in 1936, averaged 77.4 degrees F.

FRED BEANS REPEATS HISTORIC USED CAR SALE

Doylestown, PA - Fred Beans, CEO and Founder of the Fred Beans Automotive Group located in Doylestown PA, has announced a ONE DAY SALE on Saturday, August 11th at 9:00 AM, where pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. This sale is being held due to overwhelming public demand.

Cars will be clearly marked, so come early for the best selection. This is a ONE DAY ONLY sale designed to get the local community driving again.

Fred Beans' pre-owned inventory levels need to be reduced to make room for shipments of new models arriving daily. As a result, all 7 Fred Beans Doylestown locations are selling these overstocked pre-owned vehicles to the public at drastic discounts in an attempt to clear excess inventory.

In addition to this huge variety of pre-owned vehicles, the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships in Doylestown features new Ford, Lincoln, Mitsubishi, Dodge, Chrysler, Jeep, Hyundai, Nissan, Subaru, Chevrolet, Cadillac, Buick, GMC, and Saab vehicles.

Fred Beans believes reviving the economy starts at home, and changing things locally will lead to changing things nationally.

In addition to the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships' extra inventory, additional vehicles have been acquired at incredible prices from various banks, repossession companies, auto auctions, credit unions, lease companies, and rental companies for this sale.

The sale will make pre-owned vehicles available for as low as $999, prices not normally offered to the general public. According to Fred Beans, "We want to give our customers a reason to believe in the local economy again. Someone has to look out for their best interests."

Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM to inspect the entire inventory and find the car that is right for them. Every vehicle will be cleaned, detailed, and fully prepared for instant delivery. On the evening of August 10th after close of business, Mr. Beans and his team will mark the special sale price on each and every vehicle.

Because Fred Beans' customers are feeling the credit crunch right now, the Fred Beans Automotive Group has given the dealerships' financing managers the resources necessary to get most customers' credit approved on the spot.

The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships has $10,000,000 in lending power, the result of over 50 years of strong relationships with the area's leading lenders. This means that customers with "less than perfect" credit history can have their credit approved and drive a quality pre-owned car, truck, or SUV home by lunchtime on Saturday.

Even if a customer's credit report shows a bankruptcy, divorce, tax lien, slow payment history, missed payment, or repossession, or if a customer is a first time buyer, Fred Beans may get them approved.

This special ONE DAY ONLY sale will be held at all 7 Fred Beans Doylestown locations this Saturday, August 11th, at 9:00AM.

Pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM for the start of inspection. Incredible sale prices, starting as low as $999, will be posted no later than 8:00AM. All vehicles will be sold on a first come, first serve basis. The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships is expecting a high volume of customers for this sale, so be sure to reserve your spot early.

Customers wishing to trade in a vehicle are asked to bring their title or payment book for immediate delivery. Fred Beans will even pay off your trade-in in full, no matter how much you still owe on it.

Most of these surplus pre-owned vehicles will get sent directly to auto auctions for liquidation. So, if anyone has been thinking about purchasing a good, clean, dependable pre-owned car, truck, van or sport utility vehicle, do not miss this special ONE DAY ONLY sale.

Courtesy transportation available from all local airports, train stations and bus depots.

Schools pitch new degrees at job-focused students

Despite a full-time job as a mechanical engineer, Sean Whitney is carving out hours to pursue the new Johns Hopkins MBA/M.A. in "Design Leadership." Whitney believes the program, a collaboration of the Johns Hopkins Carey Business School and the Maryland Institute College of Art, will teach him management skills while he learns to think more creatively.

His goal: to open his own business designing consumer products. "I have a background in design, and this was a good way to blend the two worlds," Whitney, 31, says.

This fall, name-brand schools like Hopkins, Northwestern University, the University of Michigan and Parsons School of Design are launching cross-disciplinary masters programs meant to make students more competi-

The programs

▶ The Hopkins program focuses on combining design and business management — an idea that has gained popularity since the Stanford Business school founded its much-admired "D-school" in 2005, with help from a donation by Hasso Plattner, co-founder of software giant SAP.

▶ The Parsons New School for Design in New York is launching its own design MBA degree this fall, as is Philadelphia University. Programs like the one at Michigan focus on combining information technology with the issues of a particular industry. Another approach is to combine management with IT.

While colleges have always tweaked their offerings, the newest crop of programs seems particularly designed for the times: They are multidisciplinary, job focused and often influenced by private industry. They typically involve mixing creativity with management, data-crunching skills with industry-specific content and science with business and management skills.

Some of these new hybrids, especially in the sciences, allow graduates to pursue technical jobs with master's degrees rather than Ph.D.s. In other cases, they reveal the influence of private companies that are helping to fund and design the programs, presumably in ways that will produce graduates the companies want to hire. REUTERS

Fighting the good fight: Joan Rivers

Joan Rivers, official patron saint of The Word, has been on a campaign against Costco ever since they declined to sell her new book, "I Hate Everyone ... Starting With Me." (Seems she's a little too controversial for the bulk paper towel crowd.)

But on Tuesday afternoon she took her protest to the next level, setting up outside an unsuspecting Costco store in Burbank, Calif., to air her grievances — and, of course, sell her book.

"Costco should not be like Nazi Germany. Next thing they'll be burning the Bible," she yelled into a megaphone while someone — let's call this person Best Costco Customer Ever — filmed her.

Rivers eventually took her show inside the store, where she handcuffed herself to a shopping cart with the help of customers.

"I know you're trying to throw me out of your store, but this is bigger than both of us," she told a manager, who eventually had to call police to escort her out. "This is private property that we've

Stars on the picket line

Joan Rivers' Costco protest wasn't exactly political, but she did manage to accuse the chain of being Nazis and infringing on her free speech (see page 8 for more). Her fellow celebs also exercise their right to assemble:

1. In March, George Clooney left a demonstration outside the Embassy of Sudan in handcuffs.

2. Susan Sarandon put on her "99 percent" uniform to join Occupy Wall Street protesters last fall.

3. Martin Sheen claims to have been arrested for demonstrating 66 times, beginning with a 1986 arrest while protesting Ronald Reagan's "Star Wars" initiative. Here, he's pictured in 2003 at a march against the Iraq War.

4. At last fall's Sundance, Kevin Smith protested the protesters who picketed his film, "Red State."

5. Bill Murray wasn't protesting anything at the "Fantastic Mr. Fox" premiere. But we love the look he's giving this PETA rep.

6. When he's not being a "Jackass," Steve-O frequently fronts PETA campaigns, such as this one against dissection.

Ensure you're on the same page in your relationship

Not all roads to romance offer a clear ride. Sometimes the signs are harder to read than others. As Emily Maynard, this season's Bachelorette, handed out roses, the message was pretty clear: stay or go. But short of gathering for the ABC show's famous rose ceremony, is it possible to miss the message? What can you do to protect yourself against the turbulence of an unexpectedly bumpy ride?

Take for example, Lucy, who came to me for advice. She was dating a guy named Adam with the usual excitement and reservation that comes at the start of any promising possibility. But Adam took off, gaining speed faster than she expected: telling her how much he liked her, wanting her to meet his friends, calling and texting all the time. Since she liked him too, she joined in and went along for the ride. Before she knew it, though, she was ahead of him, and he had slowed down, suddenly saying he couldn't keep up with her expectations. And then she didn't hear from him. That was two weeks ago.

She was angry, and didn't understand what had happened. How can you make sure you don't get ahead of the relationship, particularly if one person is coming on strong? Before you let yourself go full-steam ahead, you might want to build in a few speed bumps for yourself. There are some people who jump into a relationship fast, and then want out fast, and you want to protect yourself from getting too attached if there is the chance that person could burn out.

You can do that by being aware of when and how much of your feelings you share. If they say they like you, you can reciprocate with an, "I like you too, let's see where this goes." If they want you to meet their friends, suggest you get to

When Adam told Lucy he couldn't keep up with her, it was the equivalent of the Bachelorette's not offering a rose. It just took her a little while to realize it, and by then she was halfway down the highway and looking forward to the road trip. Once you're there, it's harder to come back.

10 REASONS TO GO TO THE MOVIES

MARY CYBULSKI

1 'The Bourne Legacy'
The "Bourne" franchise gets yet another installment, but this time sans Matt Damon. This film is an adaptation of Eric Van Lustbader's novel, his first in the "Bourne" series, which he took over from original author Robert Ludlum. It features budding action star Jeremy Renner as the new protagonist, deadly government operative Aaron Cross.

► A franchise gets re-"Bourne" with Jeremy Renner.

2 'The Campaign'
Incumbent North Carolina Congressman Cam Brady (Will Ferrell) receives a challenge from corporate puppet Marty Huggins (Zach Galifianakis) for reelection.

3 'Hope Springs' This dramedy stars Meryl Streep and Tommy Lee Jones as empty-nesters struggling to find intimacy in their marriage.

4 'Total Recall' Colin Farrell stars as lowly factory worker Douglas Quaid, who uses Rekall in order to escape his mundane life. However, the procedure malfunctions and Quaid questions what is real and what is illusion in this sci-fi thriller.

5 'Diary of a Wimpy Kid: Dog Days' In the third movie based on Jeff Kinney's wildly popular books of the same name, Zachary Gordon reprises his role as Greg Heffley.

6 'The Watch' A group of bored, suburban dads band together to form a neighborhood watch group. But then an alien invasion forces them to go from protecting the neighborhood to protecting the world.

7 'Step Up Revolution' The next installment in the "Step Up" series places Emily — the daughter of a wealthy businessman — in the heart of Miami, where she falls in love with a fellow dancer.

8 'The Dark Knight Rises' In the finale to Christopher Nolan's trilogy, leading actor Christian Bale once again plays the stone-cold, shadowy figure known as Batman.

9 'Ice Age: Continental Drift' Ray Romano, Denis Leary and John Leguizamo reteam for the fourth installment of this series, which tracks prehistoric pals as they navigate the ocean with an iceberg for a ship.

10 'The Amazing Spider-Man' The verdict is "yay!" for director Marc Webb's reboot of the Spidey story, with Andrew Garfield taking up the Silly String and Emma Stone as the enchanting Gwen Stacy. METRO

Director and photographer Lauren Greenfield set out to chronicle David and Jackie Siegel's endeavor to build the largest single-family home in America, a 90,000-square-foot Orlando mansion — to put it lightly — modeled after both Versailles and the Paris Hotel in Las Vegas. But as the U.S.

economy continued to implode, timeshare king Siegel saw his fortune — tied to his Westgate Resorts business — dry up, and the film suddenly became about something else entirely.

The timing of this was pretty interesting. You couldn't really plan something like this.

No, I couldn't have planned it. I started when they were building the house. We actually didn't start filming till early 2009, so it was a few months after the crash — but at that time they were building the house, and for me they were the people who would never be affected by the crash. We then filmed for three years, and it wasn't

Ask About Our Quartz Special

► Director Lauren Greenfield discusses her fascinating look at the couple who built the biggest home in America and the fallout that followed

We'll see you in court

Before Laura Greenfield's "The Queen of Versailles" even premiered at Sundance, David Siegel was already suing her for defamation over the film's characterization of his company, Westgate Resorts. However, Jackie continues to support and promote the film.

"I was really surprised by David's reaction because of course as you can see from the film, it was done with complete cooperation and access and I was always there at their invitation and the whole film is told in the subjects' own words," Greenfield says. And despite the tensions seen onscreen between the couple, Greenfield says Jackie and David Siegel are at peace with their differing views on the film.

According to The Wrap, Siegel sent a letter to Greenfield's attorney and the film's distributor, Magnolia Pictures, requesting new text be added to the end of the film clearing up the current state of the company and their property. "We would like no more than 26 words added to the already existing postscript at the end of the Lauren's film just to clear up the misimpressions audiences are left hanging with," Siegel says in the letter. "What you call a documentary, I call a 'Real Housewives of Orlando' pilot."

until the middle of 2010 when they had to put their house on the market that the story really shifted in the film. The tone and direction really shifted.

How did you convince your subjects to keep filming?

You know, it really didn't take much convincing. I don't know if it was because we had been working together for a while at that point, but I think it was also because David and Jackie did not have any shame about what was going on. David felt very victimized by the banks and what happened, and in a way he really was. The interesting thing about him is he was on both sides of it because his business was selling mortgages and he was beholden to the lenders. I think what you see in the film, in a bigger sense, is our kind of addiction to consumerism, and that is also part of the American character and part of what led us to this crash.

There was a startling amount of dog poop around that house. They had a lot of dogs, and they never insisted that they go outside. When things were booming, they had carpet cleaners who would come every week and they had a huge staff that cleaned up after their dogs. So for me it was really symbolic of the unsustainability of the infrastructure that we build.

Terrorism doesn't belong to Muslims

After the shootings in Colorado and Wisconsin, it is high time to realize that Muslims are not the only terrorists we have to worry about, but there are many other dangerous, home-grown terrorists right here who are ready to strike at any time. The government is focusing only on a certain community and people with certain looks; it's wasting the time and money, but failing to detect the real threats right under its nose.

GEORGE KUTTIKAL, VIA E-MAIL

Semiautomatic soul ban, then?

Americans should search their souls for their souls, not gun violence. Evil stems from the soul, and those who think that by controlling guns they can end violence aren't addressing the real underlying issue — and don't want to.

JAMES GOLDING, VIA E-MAIL

Some words better left unprinted

As an Arab-American, I find it abhorrent that Metro has no problem printing an ethnically charged word like "towel-head," not once, but twice, over the past two days. What if it was a mural of an African-American? Would you use the "N-word" as freely?

MICHAEL LOTFY, VIA E-MAIL

There's no way this could backfire

I was impressed with the economic boost that Chick-fil-A got in reaction to the CEO's thoughts on gay marriage. Maybe if more business owners speak out, it will continue to stimulate the economy.

GENE TOWBA, VIA E-MAIL

Show us the witch certificate!

I totally disagree with Mr. Murphy's opinion that Obama will go down as the least qualified and worst president in history. Since day one of his presidency, there has been an open witch hunt being carried out against Obama, and I think if you look deep enough into its origins, you'll find an ugly, well-known motivation which seems to show up time and time again. I think Obama has been doing as well as he can be expected considering the conditions in which he inherited his presidency.

JONATHAN PERRY, VIA E-MAIL

Romney does share the wealth, actually

In response to the criticism, disguised as a question, that Mitt Romney doesn't give back: Over the past two years, he made $7 million in charitable donations. According to his last two tax returns, he donates 14-17 percent of his income to charity. The average person in the same income level as Romney donates 6.5. Besides the church, Romney donates to the Center for the Treatment of Pediatric Multiple Sclerosis, the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and his alma mater. Not agreeing with candidates on the actual issues is fine, but we shouldn't allow our opinions to be clouded by generalizations of who someone is because of his or her political party. Did Democrats complain this much about John Kerry's wealth when he ran?

'Humbled' Reid back at Birds camp, talks about son's battle

► Eagles coach runs first practice since Garrett's death
► Thanks fans for support ► Drugs cause of death?

Andy Reid was back at Eagles practice. The coach pulled up in his SUV yesterday, just like he had every day at training camp before his son Garrett tragically died from an apparent drug overdose. The coach ran the Eagles' morning walk-through, then addressed the media. There was no overflow of emotion, but Reid stood in front of the masses as a self-admitted "humble man."

"I'm a humble man standing before you, very humble man," Reid said. "I'm humble because the outpouring — not only from the media, but our football team, from the fans — it was unbelievable."

Reid has been called a "rock" by his many adoring peers and players in the past few days. That moniker was on full display at Lehigh. He was emotional. He was open and honest. Still, Reid never broke down, never shed a tear.

Some people have chastised Reid for coming back too soon.

► Andy Reid returned to the football field yesterday because the coach knew his son "wouldn't have wanted it any other way."

However, the man who has commanded the Eagles for 14 seasons knew in his "heart" it was the right thing to do. Reid said it was what Garrett would have wanted.

"I know that coming back and coaching is the right thing to do," said Reid, adding that his wife, Tammy, had given him her blessing. "I know my son wouldn't have wanted it any other way."

Reid also confirmed what he hinted at in a statement he released Monday evening. In it,

For Garrett

Eagles announce special tributes for Reid's deceased son today (7:30 p.m.)

A moment of silence will be observed for Garrett Reid tonight before the Birds and Steelers kick off preseason.

Eagles players will wear decals with the initials "GR" painted on their helmets.

he commented that Garrett had lost the battle he had been fighting for eight years, a reference to his eldest son's public fight against drug addiction. Again, Reid told reporters to wait for the coroner's report to confirm it, but the implication was there.

"It's like fighting a grizzly bear. It's hard to win," Reid said. "It's a sad situation, it's one that my son's been battling for a number of years. That doesn't mean you stop loving your son."

Vick vows to dedicate 2012 to the Reid family

Mike Vick has never been one to hide his love and appreciation for Andy Reid. Remember, it was Reid that gave him a second chance in the NFL when everyone else was holding up red flags.

Now, with tragedy staring his coach smack in the face, Vick has assured Reid the 2012 season will be special.

"Our entire season will be dedicated to Garrett," Vick said. "I'm personally dedicating my season to coach and to my teammates."

Today marks the unofficial start, when the Eagles host the Steelers in their preseason opener. It is sure to be an emotional night when Reid's name is blared over the stadium's loudspeaker.

Reid said Vick and Garrett had developed a special relationship. Garrett had been a fixture in the weight room, as an assistant strength and conditioning coach, and the two often shared each other's past pains. Both had served prison sentences, both battled their inner demons.

"They developed a bond," Reid said.

NFL news

Seattle slew

Terrell Owens came to Seattle for a workout and ran a 4.43 forty at age 38. He left with a one-year deal. TO may have strong straight-line speed, but football players rarely run in straight lines. If he could play at an elite level, other teams would've scooped him up.

CUFF LINKS: KNOW YOUR STAR BACKUPS

NFL players (Marshawn Lynch, Justin Blackmon, Dez Bryant) have spent a lot of time in handcuffs this offseason. Now it's time for fantasy owners to break them out.

Practicing proper handcuffing strategy can save a season, especially at a thin running back position. Darren McFadden owners that protected themselves by rostering Michael Bush last year laughed all the way to titles. Here are the keys to artfully handcuffing in 2012:

Backup caliber

Doesn't the old saying go "if a backup gets a carry but can't play, does anyone hear it?" The Raiders' handcuff worked last year because Bush is a starting-caliber back, capable of damage with 20 touches a game. The coaches didn't have to abandon the playbook, employ a committee or go pass-heavy just because McFadden went down. The best handcuffs will be clear feature backs in the event of an injury.

Lock them up

A running back's caddy should affect your draft strategy. For example, Arian Foster is a better first-round pick than Ray Rice because of the backup situation. Ben Tate is a beast and would be a top-10 option if Foster went down. Bernard Pierce is Rice's backup, but he'd be a weak part of a committee if called upon. The Foster owner can snag Tate in the middle rounds and sleep easy at night.

Best of the rest

Tate is in a class by himself, but there are other must-cuffs. They include Rashad Jennings, a talented player operating as the starter while Maurice Jones-Drew holds out. Bush is now in Chicago as Matt Forte's clear backup. Peyton Hillis will push for 25 touches if Jamaal Charles (knee) sustains a setback, and Isaiah Pead is an exciting rookie behind declining Steven Jackson. David Wilson (Giants), Felix Jones (Cowboys) and Jason Snelling (Falcons) are all strong plays as well.

Felix wins Olympic gold

Allyson Felix ended her gold medal drought, sprinting to victory in the 200m yesterday in 21.88 seconds.

Felix, the American sprinter who came up empty in two previous Games (Athens, 2004; Beijing 2008), topped Jamaica's Shelly-Ann Fraser-Pryce by .21 seconds. Fellow American Carmelita Jeter earned the bronze.

"Finally," Felix said. "It's been a long time coming. It was a big weight lifted."

Jamaica's Veronica Campbell-Brown, the two-time defending champion in the event, crossed the finish line in fourth place. METRO

Kobe leads USA to win

The Americans (6-0) can't be stopped. The men's hoops team rolled to a 119-86 win yesterday in the quarterfinals.

Kobe Bryant led the way for the U.S. with 20 points, while LeBron James posted a triple-double (11 points, 14 boards, 12 assists). They get a rematch with Argentina on Friday. METRO
